ESOP:日本におけるジャーナリズム I (Journalism in Japan I)

Robert SAKAI-IRVINE

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 春学期授業/Spring | Year :
Day/Period : 月 1/Mon.1

[Outline and objectives]

Journalism in Japan I asks you to think about and discuss the principle of press freedom through its expression here in Japan. Over the 14 weeks of the course, you will delve into the Japanese free press' sometimes troubled history and present reality, while grappling with questions that go to the heart of not just journalism, but to definitions of the "public interest" and the health of democratic systems. For example: Is state control of the news media ever justified? Looking at real-world situations for context, your own responses to that question may surprise you.

[Goal]

Using historical and present-day case studies, you will examine what press freedom actually means in practice, and the different ways it can be restricted. For example, does keeping secrets and imposing penalties for reporting them count as limiting press freedom? You will do this by:

- examining the early days of print news in Japan, and the dark days of the descent into war;
- discussing types of information control, and present-day law and attitudes to official secrecy;
- questioning, through actual examples, whether there are any ethical limits to freedom of the press and expression;
- comparing coverage of the same issues in different publications;
- a formal team debate on a question related to press freedom or freedom of speech;
- and talking about how news is covered from day to day, through class analysis of at least one real-time news article per week (of your choosing).

[Which item of the diploma policy will be obtained by taking this class?]

[Method(s)]

Students will be expected to prepare for class using the assigned readings (and anything else relevant that catches your eye) and be active contributors to class and small-group discussions. Furthermore, students will be divided into small groups to prepare for end-of-semester debates on major issues facing journalism now. Like any good journalist, be curious and critical.

[Work to be done outside of class (preparation, etc.)]

- Weekly reading assignments.
- Read and be ready to discuss at least one news article about Japan per week.
- One short essay, presentation preparation, debate preparation.

[Textbooks]

Students will receive weekly reading assignments. Also, students are expected to keep an eye on current affairs in Japan by following the news regularly.

[References]

Additional literature will be introduced in class as necessary.

[Grading criteria]

Participation: 20%

As this is a heavily discussion-focussed class, you should be willing to state your views on the topics covered and engage both the instructor and your classmates in debate and exchanges of ideas. Everyone will have plenty of chances to speak, and you will be given the time you need to express yourself, so make your voice heard.

Preparation: 20%

Be ready to discuss the weekly readings in detail and from multiple angles. Please note that you will sometimes be asked very specific questions about the readings, and to make short group presentations regarding the material.

Also, have at least one Japan-related article from that week's news ready to discuss in every class.

Short essay: 10%

Debate performance and participation: 20%

Debate preparation: 30%

Your team will be required to submit its opening statement, arguments and evidence, and an annotated bibliography. You will also need to submit a short paper on your own position on your topic, which may be different from the one your team took on debate day.

NOTE: Three unexplained absences will result in an automatic E grade.

[Changes following student comments]

There will be greater emphasis on group work before class discussions on the topic of the day. The timing of the first assignment has also been shifted.

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 春学期授業/Spring | Year :
Day/Period : 月 3/Mon.3

Final term paper: 45%

[Changes following student comments]

The instructor will make more effort to encourage students to ask questions and to participate actively in discussions.

[Others]

The schedule may be subject to change based on class size and other factors.

[Outline and objectives]

This course aims to provide students with a survey of Japanese society and culture in the years between the end of the Russo-Japanese War (1905) and the Mukden Incident (1931), often referred to with the term "Taisho Democracy." As the period was marked by social and political trends that anticipated the post-World War II democratized regime, it is hoped that the survey will afford a better understanding of present-day Japan and its people.

[Goal]

The main goals of the course are as follows:

- 1) Students will be familiarized with historical facts of the above-mentioned era and learn to look at "Taisho Democracy" from various aspects.
- 2) Students will learn how to situate Japan today properly in a broader historical, social, and cultural context.

[Method(s)]

The course will explore a wide range of texts taken from such fields as socio-political history, literature, cultural criticism, popular culture, etc., in order to understand the cultural and social complexity of the era. It will comprise lectures, discussions and presentations.

[Outline and objectives]

Sociality in Contemporary Japan: Connection and Disconnection

[Goal]

This course explores a cultural philosophy of sociality in Japan: the way in which people find themselves in relations of obligation, attachment, isolation, indifference, and so forth. The focus is on the contemporary period but the course readings will include some historical materials as well. How is social relationality theorized and acted upon in practice? Drawing on history, sociology, anthropology and other traditions of scholarly knowledge, the course examines diverse ways in which social connection and disconnection are imagined and embodied in contemporary Japan.

[Method(s)]

Classes will consist of discussion and lectures. Students will make active contribution to class discussion through presentations and breakout sessions. Students will conduct a research project – group or individual – on a topic of their choosing, and present their findings in a conference-style presentation as well as a written report.

ESOP:日本の近代とメディア (Media and Modernity in Japan)

Shiho MAESHIMA

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 春学期授業/Spring | Year :
Day/Period : 火 3/Tue.3[Outline and objectives]

This course aims to give students an overview of the interconnections between the formation of modern discourses and the development of various media in modern Japan up until the early 20th century. While the emphasis will be on print media and their relation to gendered everyday modernity as well as Japan's self image, other related issues will be also explored.

[Goal]

By the end of the course, students are expected to have acquired basic knowledge about cultural developments in modern Japan and become able to consider related topics in their socio-historical contexts.

[Method(s)]

Classes will consist of lectures and various activities, including discussions, reaction paper writing, and student presentations. In each class, students will be expected to critically analyze diverse texts and cultural artifacts ranging from periodical articles and photo images to advertisements in order to better understand or consider the issues in question. Classes are conducted entirely in English. Reading materials are written in English and will be provided in class. There will be an in-class screening of a film.

Students will be expected to work on each week's assignment(s). Each student will also be in charge of preparation for a presentation or presentations based on the assignments in turn. These assignments will provide the basis for class discussion. Students will have to prepare for a term paper and an in-class presentation based on it.

[Textbooks]

Reading materials will be provided by the instructor.

[References]

Reference materials will be suggested by the instructor whenever appropriate.

[Grading criteria]

The final grade for the course will be determined by evaluation in the following areas:

Class participation (homework assignments, discussions, lecture reaction, in-class reaction paper writing): 35 %

Presentation(s): 35 %

Term (Final) paper: 30 %

[Changes following student comments]

I heard from students that many of them started their ESOP program in the fall semester and thus that they would prefer to take an introductory course in the fall semester rather than the spring semester. Accordingly, I have decided to teach the course "Media and Modernity in Japan" in the spring semester and the "Introduction to Japanese Cultural History" (an introductory course) in the fall semester.

[Equipment student needs to prepare]

Students are expected to use the university's online class support system ("H'etudes").

[Others]

Do not miss the first and second classes. (A detailed syllabus will be handed out on the first day.)

Please note, the above schedule is subject to change.

No prior study of Japanese cultural history is required. However, a strong interest and a serious commitment to learning the culture are mandatory.

ESOP:日本のマイノリティー社会 (Japan's Ethnic Minorities)

Chisato HOTTA

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 水 3/Wed.3

[Outline and objectives]

We will begin by introducing several pivotal events during the bakumatsu period. In the late 19th century, Japan feared colonization by the West and responded by incorporating Hokkaido and Okinawa into its empire. Japan next acquire Taiwan following the First Sino-Japanese War (1894-1895). We will then examine the main factors contributing to Japan's colonization of Korea. The process of colonization created a racial discourse about Korea that was greatly influenced by the West.

In the second part of this course, we will discuss Korean migration to Osaka, which was one of the largest industrial cities in the world at that time. Throughout this class, we will investigate how Koreans became racialized. At the same time, we will briefly discuss their positive utilization of the segregated community (i.e. initiating ethnic business, professional services, etc.).

We will study Japanese colonial policies, with a particular focus on how Koreans coped with Japan's assimilation policy (kōminka). We will learn how ethnic identity ("Koreanness") contributed to sustaining their resistance to marginalization.

Additionally, we will examine how Koreans interacted with other marginalized populations-including the burakumin (outcasts), Okinawans, Chinese, and Taiwanese. Lastly, we will discuss a number of issues from the post-war period. Throughout the course, we will consider the meaning of "history from below"-minority history-which counters mainstream historical narratives.

[Goal]

1. Help students to gain a broader understanding of domestic and world affairs in the early stages of Japan's modernization, and to comprehend how Japanese expansionism and colonialism were intertwined.
2. Help students to learn the concepts of race, ethnicity, etc., and be able to question whether Japanese racism is the same as the Western racism.
3. Develop students' understanding of the global diffusion of racist discourse and practices, their effects in the era of capitalist development, their global circulation through colonialism, and their effects on local communities.
4. Develop students' critical thinking about social and political phenomena.
5. Develop students' awareness of and sensitivity to "racial issues" by understanding how racism and racist practices function in everyday life.

[Method(s)]

The format of the course will be short lectures with discussions and presentations. Students are also expected to give one presentation based on close and careful readings of course materials, or on a topic related to this course. Comparative perspectives will be welcomed.

[Outline and objectives]

This course will review and discuss the development of the Japanese economy and industry as a process of adaptation to the changing world and the innovative movement during the processes.

[Goal]

This course aims to understand Japan's rise as an economy and technological power. Japan was the first major nation outside the Western mainstream, to achieve broad technological and organizational advances. Japan's economic development remains a model for many countries who have not yet been able to master modern technology and organizational forms. How did Japan achieve what it has? Can Japan sustain its technological and economic development given its present economic status and changes in the economy's idiosyncratic features? This course seeks to answer some of the questions above.

ESOP:ディスカバージャパン I (Discover Japan I)

James LASSEGARD, Akiko MURATA

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 春学期授業/Spring | Year :
Day/Period : 木 3/Thu.3

【Outline and objectives】

In this course students from diverse nationalities and cultural backgrounds will work together in groups using English and Japanese to do research and learn more about Japanese society in the process. In the classroom, students will learn and use fieldwork research methods in order to gain in depth knowledge of Japanese society. Classroom instruction is comprised of occasional lectures and team-building activities. Students will also learn from each other by sharing information in group discussions.

【Goal】

Students will learn how to work effectively and flexibly in multicultural and international groups, learning from the diverse perspectives of group members and overcome the challenges of working with people from different cultural backgrounds. Students will gain in depth knowledge about Japan and Japanese society through experiential learning as a result of this course. Personal and academic growth can be expected. They may even discover something about their own intercultural self and their strength and weaknesses in the process of group and field work.

【Method(s)】

The course is exploratory and reflective in approach, and it offers multilingual and multicultural platforms for students to collaborate and learn in pairs and in small groups.

Prerequisite for participants: Students are expected to have a strong desire to participate in diverse (multicultural and multilingual) groups. They are also expected to be curious about Japan and Japanese society. English is the main language of course and students should have a strong willingness to communicate in English. Due to the immersive nature of the fieldwork assignments, International students should have at least lower intermediate Japanese language ability. Exceptions may be made if students show strong willingness to communicate.

【Outline and objectives】

We will draw on a "social constructionist" framework and examine how certain social problems have been discovered, defined, and dealt with in post-war Japan. We begin the course by providing an overview of sociological approaches, in particular, a social constructionist approach to social problems, and critically examining Nihonjin-ron (theories of Japanese-ness) to provide frameworks for approaching Japanese social problems. We will then discuss specific social problems around the Japanese family, Japanese education, multiculturalism and globalization, work, mental health challenges, aging Japan, and politics of nature.

The aim of this course is to take critical perspectives into representations of Japanese social problems, particularly in the media, through taking a constructionist approach.

【Goal】

By the end of the course, students will be able to explain the "social constructionist" framework and apply it for making sense of Japanese social problems in post-war Japan. It is expected that students will develop a nuanced understanding of contemporary Japanese society through critically examining the social problems from sociological/anthropological perspectives.

【Method(s)】

Classes will primarily be based on presentations and group discussions rather than lectures. It is therefore expected that students come to class having done the assigned reading and ready to discuss them. Every student will make a presentation (either individually or in groups) and write a paper on a chosen topic.

ESOP: ネット社会と日本 (Japan As a Net Community)

Yoshiaki OHSHIMA

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 月 3/Mon.3

[Outline and objectives]

This course gives an introduction to Japan's Internet development and deals with its recent trends in network-enabled society ("ネット社会"). This course will focus on the evolution of network communications in Japan over the last few decades. A historical overview will be given on the development of the Internet. Japan's own deployment of global communication networks will then be characterized in terms of technology, standardization, business competition, governmental initiative and deregulation. Also the current status of broadband Internet will be discussed in terms of end-user experiences by taking examples from the following online services:

1) games and streaming multimedia, 2) wireless broadband, 3) ubiquitous computing, 4) net auctions and shopping, 5) weblogs, and social networking services.

Lastly a few sociological and demographic issues will be discussed pertaining to the recent emergence of what is called the "net community".

[Goal]

To acquire a historical overview of Japan's development of "Internet"
To acquire knowledge on the current status of ICT environment of Japan
To become able to relate local experiences and observations to those acquired in home country in view of today's Internet

[Which item of the diploma policy will be obtained by taking this class?]

[Method(s)]

Classes are composed of a series of lectures and thematic discussions every week. The former chronologically covers significant events in the development of Internet in Japan. The latter deals with several subjects of today in order to help students better understand contemporary issues.

In addition, group work activities will be given 3 times during the semester, where groups of 6~8 students collaborate on quick online research on different assigned topics chosen from contemporary issues such as prepaid SIM, online games, Netflix, IoT (internet of things), Airbnb, bit coin, deep learning, etc. The outcome of such group work would be a brief in-class presentation.

Finally term paper (A4 or 8.5x11, 5 pages) will be assigned at the end of the semester, of which subject must be individually proposed towards the last month of the course and chosen from topics covered in the class or within the related areas of Internet and Japan.

[Work to be done outside of class (preparation, etc.)]

This course is given in English. No advanced skills in Japanese language are required. However, students may be interested in getting additional information by searching for Japanese articles. Students, who may need occasional help in Japanese language, are encouraged to take advantage of web-based translation services such as Google as your self-help tool. They are not perfect but often useful.

Students are encouraged to make a good use of Hosei's course management system and additional web-based tools to share findings and exchange ideas as part of their individual learning activities as well as to gain efficiency while working on assignments. No prior knowledge is required for getting started.

[Textbooks]

Reading materials will be made available on-line.

[References]

Reading materials will be made available on-line.

For ICT policy making of Japan, look for English pages of Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications:

To retrieve English translations of Japanese laws, use the following service by Japanese government:

Many useful articles and figures are available from archived "Internet White Paper" since 1996 till 2016, although you need to grab Japanese text and get help from crude translation services such as Google:

<http://iwarchives.jp/>

[Grading criteria]

Class participation with reaction paper: 20%

Review quiz: 20%

Homework: 30%

Term paper: 30%

Submitted term paper will be evaluated based upon its 1) format, 2) logical development, 3) relevance, 4) quality of references and 5) originality. By "relevance" your work should be an attempt to somehow characterize contemporary Japan with focused analysis on The Internet and network communications.

[Changes following student comments]

I suggest students take enough time to enable themselves to sign on the campus network and registered on "H'etudes" course management system before attending the class.

We often encountered technical problems in accessing campus network via WiFi in 2016, for which I have been working on improving the availability and in considering alternative means for accessibility.

We did not enjoy full benefit of group learning in 2016 in its early attempt, not seeing enough collaboration among Japanese students and international students. To improve classroom management, I have revised the schedule and made clear that lecture subjects and group work themes are on separate horizons. Please note that our group work themes are easy enough requiring no prior knowledge of subjects covered in the class. However, please don't miss out the possible learning outcome of what seemingly easy everyday topics could bring out. You learn a lot through group activities by exchanging and sharing your ideas and experience with your class mates, which turned out effective in the 2017 course.

I would also emphasize the value of reading assignment suggested in the class to better prepared for group activities, for which I do not feel I was most successful in the 2018 class.

[Equipment student needs to prepare]

You don't have to be technology-savvy, but we use Internet a lot in the classroom as well as at home.

Each enrolled student should bring his/her own laptop PC(*) or tablet with WiFi connectivity for individual classroom use. Smart phones are not allowed as a classroom tool due to their limited functionality. The instructor would ask you to shut down smart phones to avoid WiFi gets tied up with non-classroom use.

We will make use of various on-line resources, some of which are only available for and limited to campus use. So please make sure that you have access to Hosei campus network with your student ID before attending the first week class.

(*)Windows laptop PCs are available at the Campus Computing Center for on-campus use.

[Others]

We will use web-based tools such as e-Portfolio and "H'etudes" course management system as our communication vehicle.

ESOP:日本の演劇 (Japanese Theater)

Akiko TAKEUCHI

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 金 3/Fri.3

【Outline and objectives】

Traditional Japanese theater has some very distinctive characteristics compared to traditional Western theater. Since the early 20th century, it has thus been serving as the source of inspiration for playwrights and theater directors around the world who attempt to overcome the boundaries set by the Western stage traditions.

This course takes up traditional Japanese theater and Takarazuka Revue (all-female musical theater —another “peculiar” Japanese theater) and helps students compare them with Western theater. Through this comparison, students will not only gain the in-depth understanding of both theatrical traditions but also recognize the potentials of Japanese theater to widen the theatrical experiences of modern audiences.

Key Words: Noh, Kabuki, Bunraku, Puppetry, Takarazuka, Musical, Cross gender performance

【Goal】

Students will learn the basic characteristics of Japanese traditional theater in comparison to those of the modern Western theater. They will also learn how to compare and analyze plays of various theatrical traditions and genres.

【Method(s)】

The class combines reading of individual plays, lectures on various theatrical genres, video viewing of the actual stages, and class discussion. To make the most of the cultural opportunities that Tokyo provides, theater outings are also planned to be incorporated. The class schedule listed below is therefore subject to change, depending on the theater schedule during the semester.

ESOP:日本文化史入門 (Introduction to Cultural History of Japan)

Shiho MAESHIMA

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 火 3/Tue.3

[Outline and objectives]

This course is a survey of cultural history of Japan. Students will expose themselves to a wide range of cultural works, traditions, and practices of Japan in a roughly chronological order. The course will also give students an overview of the scope of approaches and concepts in recent studies in humanities and explore various perspectives from which diverse cultural artifacts can be interpreted or analyzed. Through this course, students will learn how to critically approach various texts and images concerning or produced in Japan, both premodern and modern.

[Goal]

By the end of the course, students are expected to have gained a basic understanding of cultural history of Japan and to be able to examine a wide variety of cultural artifacts ranging from literary works to representations in mass media, while avoiding cultural essentialism, being attentive to socio-historical contexts and complicated discourses on class, gender, and ethnicity.

[Method(s)]

Classes will consist of lectures and various activities, including discussions, reaction paper writing, and student presentations. In each class students will be expected to critically analyze diverse cultural materials in order to better understand or consider the issues in question. Classes are conducted entirely in English. Reading materials are written in English (sometimes available both in English and Japanese) and will be provided in class.

[Changes following student comments]

I heard from students that many of them started their ESOP program in the fall semester and thus that they would prefer to take an introductory course in the fall semester rather than the spring semester. Accordingly, I have decided to teach the course "Media and Modernity in Japan" (a little bit advanced course) in the spring semester and the "Introduction to Japanese Cultural History" (an introductory course) in the fall semester. I also decided to assign the students the final paper instead of writing exams in order to encourage their motivation for study.

[Equipment student needs to prepare]

Students are expected to use the university's online class support system ("H'etudes").

[Others]

Do not miss the first class. (A detailed syllabus will be handed out.)

Please note, the above schedule is subject to change.

Prior study of modern Japanese history and media development in Japan is not required. A strong interest in and a serious commitment to learning media and everyday modernity in Japan are.

ESOP:日本のビジュアルアート (Visual Arts in Japan)

Shiho KITO

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 木 3/Thu.3

【Outline and objectives】

While you are waiting for a train in morning rush hour, you may have encountered slightly peculiar scenes in Japan: an office worker enjoying manga, a lady putting a yuru-chara keyholder on her upscale designer bag, or a train sliding into the station of which interior and exterior covered up by printed anime characters.

Such visual art culture seemingly pervades and is well-accepted in Japan. Looking at the development of visual arts, can it help us to get a better understanding of people's idea or aesthetics, which such visual arts may embody?

This course explores relationships between the study of visual arts focusing on Modern and Contemporary eras and the expressions and ideas behind them. Adopting interdisciplinary and practice-based approaches to arts, media, and design, we will look at how visual arts and its aesthetics have shaped and influenced Japanese daily life and people's way of seeing things.

【Goal】

The course aims to nurture critical eyes to visual arts through lectures and practices while referring to correlated arts and design movements as well as historical backgrounds in and outside Japan. Gaining insights into how visual arts have been developed in Japan, students will obtain a deeper understanding of visual expression, visual language, ideas and aesthetics (e.g. kawaii, ma), as well as practical experience while working on a theme of your own (to be discussed and decided in class).

【Method(s)】

This course uses a practice-based learning approach to develop students' understanding of visual arts in Japan. Students are expected to engage in weekly exercises supported by lectures discussing signature artists, designers and artworks. Exercises initially take the form of drawing activities that ask students to explore artworks visually. Working towards an individual approach, students are required to make artworks (in any media), to assemble them as visual art projects, and to present them in the form of portfolio books. To create a portfolio book, students are expected to use an online book printing service (suggestions will be given). To evidence the creative process, students are also expected to document the classes and activities in a workbook.

【Work to be done outside of class (preparation, etc.)】

Students are expected to prepare required materials for class (instructions will be given each week), as well as do assigned readings. Students are expected to maintain a sketchbook describing/reflecting upon their creative activities and experience in each class. The visual art project will also require a number of hours spent outside of class in order to complete artworks and build the portfolio book. Visits to at least one art exhibition in/around Tokyo during the course will help with ideas and inspiration (suggestions will be provided).

【Textbooks】

No textbook will be used. Handouts and reading materials will be distributed in class.

【Grading criteria】

Participation: students are expected to take part in weekly activities and submit class assignments and proposals for the final projects (instructions and goals are set for each assignment to be completed). More than 2 unexcused absences will result in failure of this course.

Portfolio Book: each student must produce a portfolio book (min. of 12 pages with no less than 6 visual images) in any media, which explores their own theme (to be discussed in class). Students will also be asked to use an online book printing service. Further details will be explained in class.

Research Workbook: students will be required to make weekly contribution to their workbooks (minimum of 2 pages per week) with class activities and self-directed research activities. In final review session, each student must make 3 min presentation about inspirations and learnings from research and how they influenced his/her visual art project.

The final grade is based on: Participation 20%, Portfolio Book (Visual Art Project) 50%, and Research Workbook 30%.

【Changes following student comments】

Not applicable.

【Equipment student needs to prepare】

Students will need a laptop or smartphone, a workbook (e.g. blank sketchbook in B5-A4 size), a selection of drawing materials (e.g. colour pencil, pastel crayon, pen, pencil, brush, ink) and general stationary (e.g. glue, tape, scissors, ruler). Other specific art materials may also be requested although notification will be given. Students will also need access to a camera/mobile phone camera and a printer and know how to use it. Details of the required sketchbook and drawing materials will be given in class.

【Others】

Being naturally creative is not a requirement for this course, however, students are expected to come to class on time, participate and show interest. Please note that each student will be asked to pay for an online book printing service to produce his/her portfolio book. Printing will cost 500 - 4,000 yen according to size, number of pages, and print quality. Further details will be explained in class.

The instructor is a photographer and an independent curator who has work experience at a contemporary art gallery in Tokyo.

ESOP: ディスカバージャパンⅡ (Discover Japan II)

James LASSEGARD, Akiko MURATA

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 木 3/Thu.3

【Outline and objectives】

In this course students from diverse nationalities and cultural backgrounds will work together in groups using English and Japanese to do research and learn more about Japanese society in the process. In the classroom, students will learn and use fieldwork research methods in order to gain in depth knowledge of Japanese society. Classroom instruction is comprised of occasional lectures and team-building activities. Students will also learn from each other by sharing information in group discussions.

【Goal】

Students will learn how to work effectively and flexibly in multicultural and international groups, learning from the diverse perspectives of group members and overcome the challenges of working with people from different cultural backgrounds. Students will gain in depth knowledge about Japan and Japanese society through experiential learning as a result of this course. Personal and academic growth can be expected. They may even discover something about their own intercultural self and their strength and weaknesses in the process of group and field work.

【Method(s)】

The course is exploratory and reflective in approach, and it offers multilingual and multicultural platforms for students to collaborate and learn in pairs and in small groups.

Prerequisite for participants: Students are expected to have a strong desire to participate in diverse (multicultural and multilingual) groups. They are also expected to be curious about Japan and Japanese society. English is the main language of course and students should have a strong willingness to communicate in English. Due to the immersive nature of the fieldwork assignments International students have at least intermediate Japanese language ability. However, exceptions may be made for those showing strong willingness to communicate.

ESOP:日本におけるジャーナリズムⅡ (Journalism in Japan II)

Robert SAKAI-IRVINE

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 金 1/Fri.1

[Outline and objectives]

News plays a significant role in forming what we all think we know about the world. Through the lens of print news here in Japan, Journalism in Japan II asks students to question and discuss the ethics of reporting, tackling issues including anonymous sourcing, privacy vs. public interest, and cozying up to information sources. Hopefully, you will never look at news articles the same way again.

NOTE: You may enroll in this course without having taken Journalism in Japan I.

[Goal]

To achieve the above, you will explore the ins and outs of news reporting by:

- exploring how print news media operates in Japan, especially the big national dailies;
- learning the basics of writing articles and penning a few of your own, from a simple crime story to a major news feature;
- looking at real-world examples from both the past and more recent times, and discussing ethical problems and solutions for each case with classmates and the instructor;
- and choosing real-time news stories to dissect in class, asking the basic but important questions: What happened? And is it news?

[Which item of the diploma policy will be obtained by taking this class?]

[Method(s)]

We will use a mix of comparative readings, presentations, writing assignments and plenty of class discussion to explore the journalistic and media landscapes of Japan and get into the nitty-gritty of how the news is reported.

[Active learning in class (Group discussion, Debate.etc.)]

1	What makes a good news article?	Outline of the class. Class discussion: What makes a good newspaper article? And what are the ethical foundations of writing one? Short essay assigned. Due in Class 3.
2	Part I: The Japanese news media landscape Part II: Building an article	Part I: The Japanese news media landscape: Who are the big players in Japan's news media? What are its unique features? And what's it like to be a Japanese reporter? Part II: What are the major types of article, and how is each one built?
3	Coverage	Who gets coverage? And why? Short essay due. Article assignment 1: Write a basic news article based on provided information. Due in Class 4.
4	Sources	Goldmines and landmines. Article 1 due.
5	Kisha clubs	Kisha clubs are a fairly unique feature of reporting in Japan. But what are they? And are they an ethical source of news? Article assignment 2: A news piece about former US President Barack Obama's visit to Hiroshima, using speech excerpts. Due in Class 7.
6	Getting personal	Can reporters be friends with their sources? Case study: The Mainichi Shimbun and the return of Okinawa.
7	Anonymity	The prevalence of anonymous sources in Japanese articles. When is anonymity necessary, and when is it an ethical misstep? Who does anonymity serve? Article 2 due.

8	Documentary screening I	Citizenfour screening. Article assignment 3: Long-form news article or feature, based on provided information and quotes plus the student's own research. Up to a 5% bonus for original reporting. Due in Class 11.
9	Documentary screening II	Citizenfour cont'd.

13	PR and the press	What's news and what's an ad?
14	New Media	What are the ethical implications of instant news? How does the digital news landscape in Japan compare to overseas?

[Work to be done outside of class (preparation, etc.)]

- Weekly reading assignments.
- Read and be ready to discuss at least one news article about Japan each week.
- Write three news articles and one short essay.

[Textbooks]

Students will receive readings in each class. Also, students are expected to keep an eye on current affairs in Japan by following the news regularly.

[References]

Additional literature will be introduced in class as necessary.

[Grading criteria]

Participation: 25%

As this is a heavily discussion-focussed class, you should be willing to state your views on the topics covered and engage both the instructor and your classmates in debate and exchanges of ideas. Everyone will have plenty of chances to speak, and you will be given the time you need to express yourself, so make your voice heard.

Preparation: 25%

Be ready to discuss the weekly readings in detail and from multiple angles. Please note that you will sometimes be asked very specific questions about the readings, and to make short group presentations regarding the material.

Also, have at least one Japan-related article from that week's news ready to discuss in every class.

Three articles: 40%

Article 1=5%, Article 2=15%, Article 3=20% (+possible bonus)

Note that you should be ready to exchange your work with classmates for peer review. That means getting things done on time. In the news business, missing deadline is not an option.

One short essay: 10%

NOTE: Three unexplained absences will result in an automatic E.

[Changes following student comments]

I have endeavoured to boost the time for group discussions, to help students test their ideas with a small circle of peers before presenting them to the class as a whole.

[Others]

This is a practically focussed continuation of Journalism in Japan I, though it may be taken on its own with no problem. Some foundation material is shared with JiJ I, but the core focus and tasks are different.

ESOP:日本の金融論 (Money and Finance in Japan)

Naotsugu HAYASHI

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 金 3/Fri.3

[Outline and objectives]

Money in the economy corresponds to blood in the human body. This course explains in plain terms the monetary and financial system, theory and policy in Japan.

How do households and businesses manage income and expenditure, how does the government balance tax revenues and fiscal expenditures? The theme of this class is to understand the mechanism and work that each economic agent generates to finance money and to make the economy work from both theoretical and practical points of view.

It will be very easily understood even by students whose major is not economics.

The main themes of this course are the following:

1. Basic concepts of our monetary economy: financial markets, institutions, structure and system in Japan.
2. Basic microeconomic analysis of household finance and corporate finance in Japan.
3. Basic macroeconomic analysis of the Japanese monetary economy: financial and goods markets, monetary and fiscal policies, inflation and deflation, etc..
4. Representative financial markets in Japan: deposits and loan markets, stock markets, and bond markets.
5. Monetary policies in Japan.

[Goal]

The targets of this course are to explain in plain terms monetary and financial problems, to promote students' interest in and understanding of these problems, and to let students make use of these studies for their daily lives and job hunting.

[Which item of the diploma policy will be obtained by taking this class?]

[Method(s)]

The main method of classes is lectures utilizing PowerPoint slides. Lectures are very easily explained in order for students whose majors are not economics to understand them. Two-way quizzes are often used in the form of Q & A in classes for the purpose of active learning. Group discussions are also often used in order for Japanese and foreign students to get acquainted with each other. Moreover, I plan to take students to the Bank of Japan and the Tokyo Stock Exchange for fieldwork.

Sayako ONO

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 金 4/Fri.4

【Outline and objectives】

This course uses an anthropological perspective to examine various aspects of Japanese youth and popular culture that have attracted local/global attention. Students should relate their readings to their everyday experiences throughout the course.

【Goal】

By the end of the course, students should be able to critically engage with English language scholarship on topics related to Japanese youth and popular culture; they will also gain a nuanced understanding of key aspects of Japanese youth and popular culture.

【Method(s)】

The course will start by introducing the anthropological perspective and its related methods, which will help students to gain fundamental concepts central to Japanese youth and popular culture. With this background, the class will discuss key performative aspects including the body, gender and art in Japan, highlighting localised and globalised performances in Japan.

Students are expected to read the assigned readings, make presentations and discuss related topics in class on a weekly basis. They will also conduct mini-ethnographic projects of their own and write a report at the end of the course.

ESOP:日本のメディアと政治 (Media and Politics in Japan)

David McNEILL

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 金 5/Fri.5

[Outline and objectives]

This is a media literacy course. Over 14 weeks, it aims to problematise common-sense ideas about how the mass media works and provide a working knowledge about how politics influences media content in Japan and around the world.

[Goal]

The goal of this course is to give students a more sophisticated understanding of media texts and how they shape our perception of the world. By the end of the course you should be able to decode television and newspapers to understand the deeper meanings underneath everyday media language.

[Which item of the diploma policy will be obtained by taking this class?]

[Method(s)]

How has the huge media system that provides us with most of our information about the world developed and evolved, who owns and controls it, how does it operate and what are the implications for what we see, hear, read and watch? We explore these questions week by week in a lecture-tutorial format, using videos, newspapers and other visual stimuli. We will also visit a media organisation.

ESOP:日本の戦争と歴史認識 (War and Memory in Modern Japan)

Hall Jeffrey James

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 春学期授業/Spring | Year :
Day/Period : 水 3/Wed.3

【Outline and objectives】

Japan is a nation that has undergone huge changes in the last 150 years, transforming from a feudal society ruled by warriors, to an expansionistic imperial state, and then to a modern democracy with a pacifist constitution. This course explores how issues of militarism, pacifism, and nationalism have shaped Japanese identity and history. One event that took place over 70 years ago – the Second World War – looms large over Japan's current politics and society. This course will explore how postwar Japan has struggled to come to grips with a war that was fought in the name of a “Greater East Asian Co-prosperity Sphere,” yet resulted in millions of deaths throughout Asia and left Japan's major cities in ruins. The war brought about years of American Occupation and the adoption of a constitution that bans Japan from officially maintaining a military or waging war. Through lectures, group discussions, and student presentations, we will gain a better understanding of how these issues have influenced Japan's society, its domestic politics, and its relationship with its Asian neighbors. This course is not a traditional history of Japan's conduct in wars. Rather, it is an interdisciplinary examination of Japan's war experience and its impact on postwar Japan. This course will trace Japan's journey from a militaristic autocracy to a pacifist democracy.

【Goal】

By the end of the course students will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of social scientific approaches to historical memory, national identity, and nationalism
- Express viewpoints on various perspectives of current controversies in East Asia involving the remembrance of World War II
- Evaluate the importance of the pacifist and anti-war movement in postwar Japanese society & politics
- Analyze the domestic and international significance of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki
- Integrate historical discussions into an understanding of the current security situation in East Asia, and Japanese political debates over remilitarization
- Construct analytical essays, give power-point presentations, and lead academic discussions.

ESOP:多様な日本—安定と流転 (Multiple Japan: Stability and Flux)

Diana KHOR

Credit(s) : 2 | Semester : 秋学期授業/Fall | Year :
Day/Period : 火 4/Tue.4

【Outline and objectives】

This is a team-taught course aims at giving students an in-depth look at the multiple sides of Japan through a series of lectures given by scholars from diverse fields. The theme varies by year, and in 2019, the focus is on gender and sexuality. Through this course, students will not only acquire critical knowledge about gender and sexuality in Japan, but will also learn to connect gender and sexuality issues to other aspects of Japanese society.

【Goal】

Students will learn to understand and think about gender and sexuality from diverse perspectives, including the representation of gender and sexuality in traditional performance art and contemporary popular culture, the connections of gender and sexuality to race/ethnicity in the emperor system, through World War II and in contemporary Japan, and the most updated research on gender and sexual minorities, including how gender is shaped in the Japanese urban space. Towards the end of the course, students will be able to make connections among these apparently disparate topics and develop a deep and critical understanding of gender and sexuality in Japan.
